Who We Are:

JBWS is a private, nonprofit, tax-exempt agency serving both Morris and Passaic counties in New Jersey. JBWS is there when a survivor calls our 24-Hour Helpline for the first time because they're concerned their relationship is unhealthy. JBWS is at police departments moments after abuse is reported, offering victims vital access to resources.

When a survivor leaves their home in the middle of the night, JBWS is there to welcome them into our residential facilities. And when it's time to face their abusive partner in court, we are by their side offering legal advocacy and support as they pursue a restraining order.

However, we don't just respond to abuse. we work to prevent it through community education and abuse intervention programs designed to end domestic violence at its source.

Our Early Beginnings:

In 1976, a small group of women in Morris County began a helpline to aid victims of domestic violence. When two of these callers were murdered by their husbands, the need for a confidential shelter became urgent. Together, with the community's support, they opened our safe house doors to the community in December 1978.

Our Services Today:

More than 85 paid staff and nearly 200 volunteers work together to create a community-wide culture that refuses to tolerate the presence of any form of intimate partner violence.

Today, the agency has grown into a full-service, private, nonprofit agency that provide safety, support and solutions for all survivors of abuse in both Morris and Passaic County.
